With the advantages of the above two value-added services. Supreme Fastener has doubled the order volume this year and received large orders from major American automakers. Supreme Fastener said to have benefited from a large number of orders redirected from Europe and the U.S. in the past two years thanks to global geopolitical factors, allowing the company to gain sales growth during the pandemic. This year, the company bucks the trend with American automaker clients adding up the number of orders. The future looks very promising.

Supreme Fastener stands a good chance of increasing equipment and production capacity upheld by sales growth.
