Linkwell Industry

Over 30 Years of Unwavering Participation in the U.S. Market

Linkwell Industry, a veteran Taiwanese fastener trader which has branched out into fastener manufacturing, has roots tracing back to the birth of Taiwanese fastener industry. It has maintained a continuous presence in the American market for over three decades. Starting in the 1990s, it has participated annually in fastener trade shows from Ohio to Las Vegas with no stopping, fostering strong and lasting relationships with U.S. clients. This year at International Fastener Expo (Las Vegas), it anticipates reconnecting with many long-standing and new clients based in the U.S., emphasizing that face-to-face communication at the event is the most effective way to meet clients' needs, reflecting its deep commitment to American clients.

In today's fast-evolving market, demand for fasteners remains robust, especially in the U.S. and Europe. Buyers in many countries are seeking suppliers capable of "risk diversification." Anticipating this trend years ago, Linkwell Industry strategically established manufacturing facilities across multiple countries, earning widespread client trust for its strong risk-taking capabilities. The company has built three key competitive advantages devoted to a stable global fastener supply.

Diverse Manufacturing Locations to Spread Geopolitical Risk

With 48 years of history, Linkwell Industry operates factories in Taiwan, China, Indonesia, Vietnam, Thailand, and Malaysia. Leveraging its origins in international trade, the company combines Taiwan's high-quality manufacturing expertise with competitive price and cost advantages to earn global recognition. This multi-location strategy effectively spreads regional risks amid international market fluctuations, guaranteeing reliable fastener supply to customers worldwide. Currently, 40% of Linkwell Industry's customers are in the U.S., 50% in Europe, and the rest across other global markets. No matter when, Linkwell Industry stands ready to support customers and give them peace of mind.
